

Clerks Get Back Money They Were Out on Forgery

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — President Truman has signed a bill to reimburse the Arkansas postoffice clerks for a total of $1,400 they made good on forged money orders in July, 1946.

The money orders were stolen from the Kedron, Ark., postoffice, forged with a fictitious name and cashed at Arkansas postoffices. A forged driver's license and social security card were used as identification. The postoffice department required the clerks to make good the losses.

GI Insurance Dividends Being Figured

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — It's physically impossible to start paying the planned $2,000,000,000 dividend on World War II veterans life insurance this year, the man in charge of the job said today.

Harold H. Tremling, Veterans Administration insurance administrator, told a reporter the accounting task is so great it is impossible yet to make a date.

He added that payments are to be completed, however, by July 1, 1950, in accordance with instructions from President Truman that the dividend be paid during the fiscal year 1950.

Important for developing developments bringing the payment date nearer are:

1. Completion of the audit of more than 20,000,000 national service life insurance accounts. The audit, under way for many months, is expected to be completed in August.

2. Printing and distribution of about 30,000,000 application forms. The forms are to be mailed probably in late August or early September to about 15,000,000 servicemen and women and to beneficiaries of veterans who have died.

The individual dividends will vary with each policy and may range as high as $500. If the total amount were pooled, the individual payments would average about $100.

President Truman has estimated the surplus from the $7,000,000,000 fund at about $2,000,000,000.

Every World War II veteran who has paid premiums on a policy for three or more months since October 8, 1947, will receive a dividend. The dividend will cover the time through the 1948 anniversary date of the policy.

Little Rock, June 9 — (AP) — President Truman, who arrives here tomorrow, will not be greeted by a bunch of blank banners.

Huge banners, proclaiming "welcome President Truman" draped across Main street here today in preparation for the arrival of Truman, coming here to attend the annual reunion of the 55th infantry division.

The "welcome" is inscribed only one side of the banners. The other side is blank.

After side is blank. The committee ordered the banners hung with the "welcome" side facing north (toward the division's headquarters at Hotel Marion).

However, President Truman, who will march with his division during its parade Saturday morning, will be headed in the opposite direction.

Soon after Little Rock residents saw the banners, they started telephoning Scott Hamilton, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

The callers wanted to know why Mr. Truman would face the blank side of the banners during the parade. Hamilton tried to explain but still the telephone calls poured in.

He finally decided to alternate the banners — one will face the line of march, another will face in the headquarters.

Several hundred early arrivals at the reunion moved into Little Rock today. Most of them were Little Rock's adopted sons.

Members of the division when it trained at nearby Camp Robinson before the United States entered World War II. The two-day meeting opens tomorrow.

President Truman was an artillery officer with the division during the first world war.

Three Killed in Nebraska Tornado

Belvidere, Neb., June 9 — (AP) — This southeastern Nebraska village struggled today to recover from the effects of a tornado which killed three and injured seven.

The main part of town was without lights, only one telephone was in operation, the water supply was threatened by the power cut-off and one building was demolished and several others were in shambles.

The tornado struck without warning about supersonic last night. Sweeping down the main street of this village of some 300 persons, it leveled a cafe and dance hall and partly wrecked a bank, the postoffice, a lumber yard, and a locker plant.

The three who were killed were all in the cafe-dance hall, a two-story brick building. They were 11-year-old Orville Belo, Jr., son of the operator of the cafe, Dwayne Kincaid, about 27, Marysville Kase, railroad shopman, and Elmer Polage, 29, Belvidere railroad sectionman.

The eight injured were in the same building when the tornado struck.

Two tornadoes were also sighted at Hebena, eight miles south of here. Neither struck the town itself but two farms nearby were damaged. No one was injured.

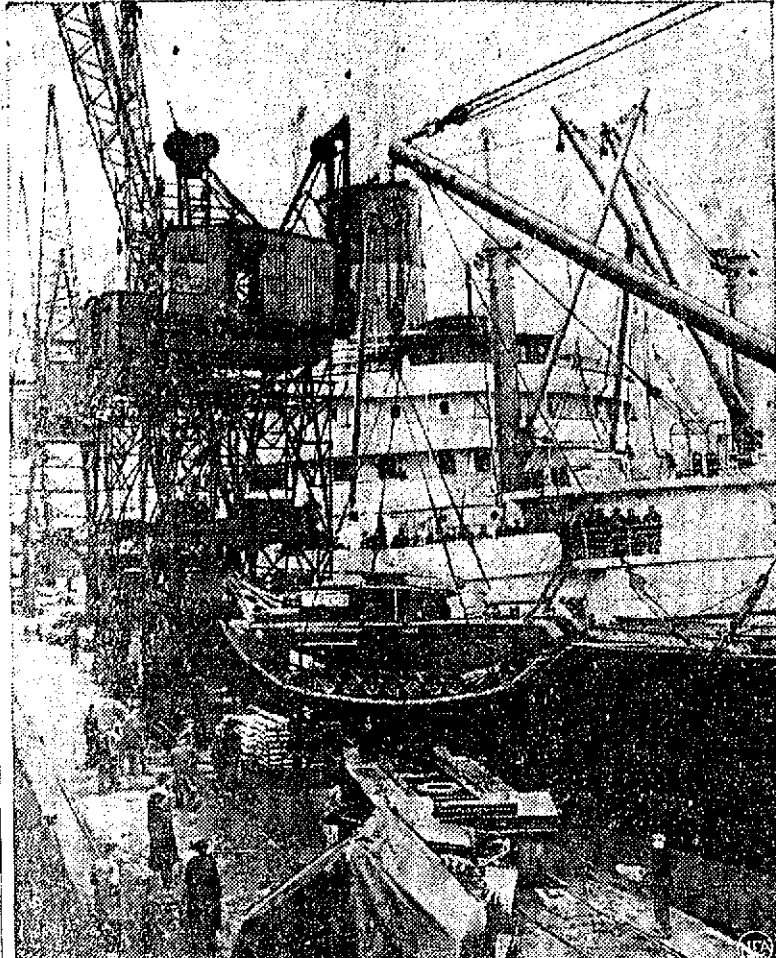

May Serve Time for Failing to Pay Court Costs

Platteau, June 9 — (AP) — Two young men will be arraigned before Circuit Judge Z. J. Harrison next week to determine if they have to go to prison because they didn't pay court costs.

The two are Eugene Bartley and Harkins Jones, convicted of second degree murder in the death of Fred H. Evans, 32, whose bullet-pierced body was found in the Black river near Cumming four years ago.

Judge Harrison suspended sentence and released the youths, now both in their 20's on $5,000 bonds on condition they pay court costs.

The costs weren't paid, and recently Bartley and Jones were picked up for arraignment before Judge Harrison.

In Its Way Congress Is Different

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, June 9 — (AP) — This is the talkiest, question askingest, bill introducingest congress of all time.

This is no snap judgment handed down by ear weary reporters.

It has been proved — by statistics — in testimony before the house appropriations committee.

Take congressional conversation. John J. Deviny, public printer, had come up to Capitol Hill to explain why it took so much money to run the government printing office.

One reason, he said, is because congress talks so much. Normally, he said, during the first two months of session of congress, the "congressional record" will average 75 pages a day.

The first 65 issues of the 81st congress, Deviny said sadly, "have averaged 116.9 pages."

Take the appropriations committee. It talks so much about saving the taxpayers money that it costs the taxpayers money.

So far, Deviny said, testimony before the various appropriations subcommittee has filled 17,646 pages. (This does not include the 28 pages needed for Deviny's testimony on why the printing cost is so high.)

Now about the bills. So far congress has had 10,568 bills introduced. That's more, Deviny said, than the last congress introduced in six months. It has taken 48,283 pages just to print them.

But congress isn't merely talking. It's also asking questions. If there is anything a congressman wants to know, he can call the legislative reference service of the library of congress.

Dr. Luther H. Evans, librarian of congress, estimates that this year the service will try to answer 22,000 congressional questions. That, on the average, is around 40 questions for each senator and representative.

Congressional curiosity, Dr. Evans said, has soared phenomenally.

For a comparison: put this year's 22,000 queries up against 1925's. In that far off, non-questioning time, congress apparently didn't need to know nearly as much.

In the whole year, it asked only 30 questions.

In England during the Middle Ages, all men between 16 and 20 were old were required by law to practice archery.

Bevin Issue Challenge to Russia

Blackpool, Eng., June 9 — (UP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin indirectly challenged the Soviets today to prove that they were not talking peace while preparing for war and hinted at the possibility of an "unwritten" agreement with Russia.

Bevin left the conference of Big Four foreign ministers at Paris to address the British labor party in annual conference here. Speaking without a prepared text, he voiced the hope that "something may emerge yet" from the Paris talks, which were reported failing.

There has never been a dictator in this world who has not talked peace while preparing for war," Bevin said, "don't be misled. It (the Russian) is the largest army, the greatest power in the world, that is mobilized today, and I want to see that brought to an end, not by war but by example and by remaining firm ourselves."

In the cryptic manner which characterizes many of his public utterances, Bevin referred without explanation to the possibility of an unwritten agreement with Russia.

"I have been forced to the conclusion that if we cannot agree on how we shall live, at least we shall agree to live together. I don't think we can do any more than that."

If there is a possibility of consultation in economic or other matters of common concern, if there is any way in which we can assist each other without involving our country in these principles which we cannot really follow, then possibly something may emerge in an unwritten way, even if we cannot agree on a written one."

Little Rock, June 9 — (AP) — Is this a poliomyelitis year for Arkansas?

Frankly, said Dr. T. T. Ross, director of the Arkansas health department, "we don't know."

There are more cases now than during the early months of 1946, the epidemic year in Arkansas.

But Ross said the situation is "not serious."

At least 34 cases of polio (infantile paralysis) have been reported since last Jan. 1. This compares to five cases recorded from Jan. 1 to June 8, 1946. There were 146 cases reported throughout the year.

Four cases have been reported in Craighead county (Jonesboro) since Sunday. Three of the victims, all youngsters, were stricken in Monette, Ark.

Dr. Ross said two other Monette youngsters, possible victims, are under observation.

Dr. A. M. Washburn, director of the department's communicable disease division, was in Monette today to investigate the situation there.

Other counties with high polio case totals this year include: Mississippi, five, and Desha, five. Three of the cases in each county occurred during May. The other victims were stricken at various times during the first months of this year.

"We've got a watchful eye on the situation," said Dr. Ross. "There is no cause for alarm, at present."

Fred Walters New Manager of Lookouts

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 9 — (AP) — Fred Walters, former manager of the Louisville Colonels, today was named playing manager of the seventh-place Chattanooga Lookouts. He succeeds George (Stud) Myatt.

Myatt immediately accepted a post as manager of Orlando in the Florida State league. Walters will take over the Lookouts tomorrow in Atlanta.

The appointment was announced by President Joe Engle, who said other changes will be made if necessary to get the Lookouts into the Southern Association pennant chase.

As manager of the Birmingham Barons, Walters won the Southern Association playoff championship in 1948 and defeated Fort Worth in the Dixie series.

DOROTHY DIX

Unkissable Husbands

Dear Miss Dix: We hear a lot about wives retaining their husbands' affections. Why isn't more said about husbands keeping their wives' love up to par? The general idea seems to be that women are so tickled at getting married that they keep their husbands in love with them.

Never was there a greater mistake, for a husband may have all the major and minor virtues and be a good provider to boot, but if he is allergic to the bathtub and goes slaver and unclean, and if his clothes look as if they had just been fished out of the garbage can, his wife is going to lose her taste for him.

Many men do not think that they have to dull themselves up to be attractive to their wives. They are so dumb they don't even know that when a woman can't be proud of her husband's appearance it kills her love for him. I'm talking you, I know.

A DISGUSTED WIFE

Answer: Yea, sister. The most inexplicable thing in all the domestic relationship is that while men are attracted to pretty dainty, well-groomed women and are repulsed by dirty slovens, with uncombed hair and bedraggled clothes, they expect their wives to stay in love with them, no matter how they look.

Just Don't Bother

All of us know many men who are so lazy, or so inert, or so absorbed in their occupations that they give no thought to their personal appearance. Their clothes are always spotted and wrinkled. Their hair needs cutting and their shoes cleaning and their shirts and collars to be disinfected. They may have wonderful minds and beautiful souls, but they look like something that was fished out of the gutter.

Yet these men can't understand why their wives get peevish and fretful and lose their affection for their husbands, but the answer is plain. It is because no woman stays in love with a husband she is ashamed of. And every woman knows her husband not thinking she is worth dressing up for. After all, to be kissed one has to be kissable, and if a husband wishes his wife to stay in love with him he must look like a date and not like a tramp.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What can you do to stop your husband from taking you for granted? Mine is kind, considerate, what you would call an ideal husband, remembering birthdays, anniversaries, etc., but between remembrances I am starved for affection, such as an unexpected kiss or an arm thrown about me. I know my husband loves me but why does he keep so mum about it?

DISCOURAGED WIFE

Answer: In reality, for your husband to take you for granted is the highest compliment he can pay you. He doesn't feel that he has to tell you how much he loves you and how he admires and trusts you, because you are so much a part of him that he would feel that he was paying himself a compliment. If you think back on the people you know, you will realize that it is only the husbands and wives who are particularly devoted to each other who ever tease each other, and make jokes about each other's little weaknesses and peculiarities.

But few women are ever big enough to take their husbands love for granted. They want to be told over and over again how much their husbands love them. How beautiful they think they are and how they would die if anything happened to them. And a smart man senses this and keeps his wife happy by feeding her on the flattery she craves.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Do you think it is possible for a mother to give up her child at birth if she knows it can be reared better than she can do it? We have three small children whom we cannot afford to rear the way they should be. If I gave these children away, would I be sorry after I had given them to strangers?

WONDERING

Answer: The one thing we cannot be philosophical about is the children who are born or our bone, flesh of our flesh and heart of our hearts. It may be quite true that you may give your children for adoption to people who will be able to give them the advantages that you can never give them, but no mother can be unselfish enough

Lonely Hearts Slayers to Go on Trial

New York, June 9 — (AP) — Two alleged "lonely hearts" slayers go on trial for their lives today, after losing a last-ditch appeal to the U. S. Supreme court for a postponement.

The pair, Raymond Fernandez, 34, and plump Mrs. Martha Beck, 29, are charged with first-degree murder in the death of Mrs. Janet Fay, Albany, N. Y., widow in Valley Stream, N. Y., last Jan. 4.

In Washington, Justice Robert H. Jackson of the U. S. Supreme court yesterday denied a petition by their attorney, Herbert E. Rosenberg, for a temporary stay in the trial.

In Michigan, they are charged with slaying another widow, Mrs. Delphine Downing, 29, and her infant daughter, Rainell, of Downing City.

ISLAND OF ESCAPE

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

Copyright by Hugh Lawrence Nelson. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

The Story: Stranded on Spear Island, eight persons who came to Henry Gough Harding's "New Eden" face a dreary future. George Bascombe, the weakling, has seized the only rifle and has declared himself "king" with Mollie Stark as his "queen." The only hope of rescue is from a fishing boat which may have been wrecked during the storm. Bea Cosgrove talks to Fred Stillwell who says he came to the island to blow mail. Harding, and believes that Harding killed both Lilly Warren and the Simpatico's mate. Bea herself came to the island to avenge the death of her husband, Jim Martin, who killed himself as a result of Harding's activities.

"You found the cleaned-up place in the storerooms. You must have missed something else," Fred Stillwell said. "When I had my talk with Harding I told him my gun wasn't mine. I hinted I wasn't satisfied with the woman's death. Maybe I mentioned the funicular. And what happens? That very night the whole place is blown sky high. Whatever evidence there was is gone. I don't need it. I don't have to make a case stand up in court."

"What'd he say when you told him it wasn't your gun?" Bea Cosgrove asked.

Stillwell scowled again at the memory. "Laughed at me. He sure made me sore. I worked all afternoon piling up driftwood for a bonfire. And then I didn't get a chance to light it."

"Did you see him leave while we were fire fighting?"

"No. You remember how it was. Everyone running around. Maybe he didn't mean the fire to get out of control maybe there was something else he wanted destroyed."

"You think he'd ruin all the works and planning he's put in on this island?"

"Hes got a lot of money left," Stillwell reminded her. "He can build again, if hes free."

"What about the dead man?"

"The fisherman? Probably he was snooping around, saw Harding leave the rifle in the shed and stole it. Then he was caught by the fire and killed himself. Anyhow he was plenty drunk."

"I need more evidence to her. When I went to the cave after the fire, George told me a case had been opened and a couple empties left lying around. He thought I did 'it'."

"I knew about the whiskey in the cave but you went on buying it from him. Why?"

"What's the harm? It kept George happy, thinking he was putting a fast one over on me. He was trying to pick up a couple bucks on the side. And it was funny in a way, George sneaking off and bringing me a bottle when I wanted it. I knew I could get the money back any time I wanted."

"How?"

Stillwell laughed. "Just ask him for it."

"You remember when George picked up the rifle? It wasn't an empty he ejected."

"Go on."

"No man could have shot himself like that and ejected a spent cartridge afterward. And left a live shell in the chamber."

"I was right to play my hunch and talk to you. You keep your eyes open. You're smart," He thought a moment. "You're sure?"

"Yes. I found the live shell. I couldn't find the empty. I looked for it."

"This fits even better. Harding left the fire fighting and went back to blow up the buildings to hide the evidence of his first crime. When the fisherman sees what Harding is doing, he lets him have it so there won't be anyone to tell and the blame for the explosion goes to the fisherman! Say! This is worth real dough to me. I won't forget it."

"Why couldn't the fisherman have done the dynamiting? Maybe he just had it in for Harding, and set the fire so he wouldn't kill all of us. Any one of us could have come back and shot him after he'd lit the fuse."

"No," Stillwell said. "If any of us had shot a dynamiter, we'd have stepped forward and got a medal."

"That's reasonable," Bea admitted.

Fred Stillwell nodded soberly. "I don't much like the spot I'm in. I can take care of myself, but telling you this gives me a little protection. It'd be harder to get rid of both of us."

"Swell of you to include me in," Bea said.

"Skip the sarcasm you're in already and you know it. This island! I wish we'd get away. It's beginning to give me the creeps. Now, the rifle. I want it. We'll have to figure out some way to get it from George."

Mable Jones flung down an armload of wood and watched Bea Cosgrove slack it around a central post.

"It gives us something to do," Mabel said. "We won't sit around and mope."

"You sound as if you expected to be here a long time."

"Why not? The Simpatico isn't due back for a couple months. We were to have a three-month trial, remember. About our only other chance is a fishing boat and this kind of weather they'll be smart enough to be somewhere else."

Bea kept still, put the last few pieces of wood on the growing pile.

And what difference does it make anyhow? To the three of us and Harding, I mean. The outsiders want to leave sure. But we came here expecting maybe to stay. I don't see the loss of the house, some comforts and supplies makes much difference. We still got the island. We can still live. I don't get this concentrating everything on being "rescued." Rescued from what?"

Harding wanted to get some more supplies.

Mabel shrugged. "That's all right too, if he wants it. We still have plenty of stuff buried though. We can get at it eventually. We could build again with what's on hand."

Britain's Socialist Rule Makes No Attempt to Try to Camouflage Its Program

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
AB Foreign Affairs Analyst

Britain's government, certainly has nailed its Socialist flag to the mast in connection with the party's annual conference at Blackpool.

There is no attempt to camouflage the program as the party gets set for the general election due next year but might come sooner. The challenge to the Conservatives, headed by former Prime Minister Winston Churchill, is without qualification.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, one of the most powerful figures in British socialism and the party's political strategist, yesterday laid the cards on the table in a speech which evoked an ovation. He named further industries which the party proposed to nationalize, and then declared that if re-elected the government would pass a "permanent and revised version" of the wartime act giving it control over industry and manpower.

"Private industry," he said, "cannot any longer be allowed to go just any way. Private industry or finance, which indulges in anti-social conduct will be pulled up sharply by a Labor (Socialist) government."

Conservative minded folk undoubtedly will interpret Morrison's process of being nationalized by declaration as a voracious rather strongly of regimentation. Be that as may, it should be noted that he didn't say the war-time measures would be used except of necessity. They would be on the books ready for use when needed.

The Socialist view of this is that there's nothing bad in the fact that the government has such powers. It all depends on how the government uses the powers. Moreover all orders under the emergency program can be rejected by parliament. Still, one would expect the conservatives to make propaganda out of this issue in the coming election campaign.

Morrison also announced that, if re-elected, the government intended to nationalize six more industries. Those proposed for state ownership are meat wholesaling and cold storage, sugar refining, cement making, most life insurance, "all suitable" minerals and water supplies.

The Socialist government in its first four years of office already has nationalized coal mines, gas works, electricity, railroads, canals, long-distance trucking, airlines, the Bank of England and the world wide cable and wireless communications company. Medicine also has been socialized — resulting in a tremendous controversy — and the vast steel industry is in process of being nationalized by parliament.

So the Socialists' gauntlet is down, but they are well aware that

Match Play Is Underway at Texarkana

Texarkana, June 9 — (P) — Match play started today in the Arkansas women's open golf tournament and will continue through Sunday.

Defending champion Betty Mason Kinon of the host Texarkana country club and 19-year-old Betty Rusing of El Dorado were co-medalists in the qualifying rounds yesterday. They shot 80's.

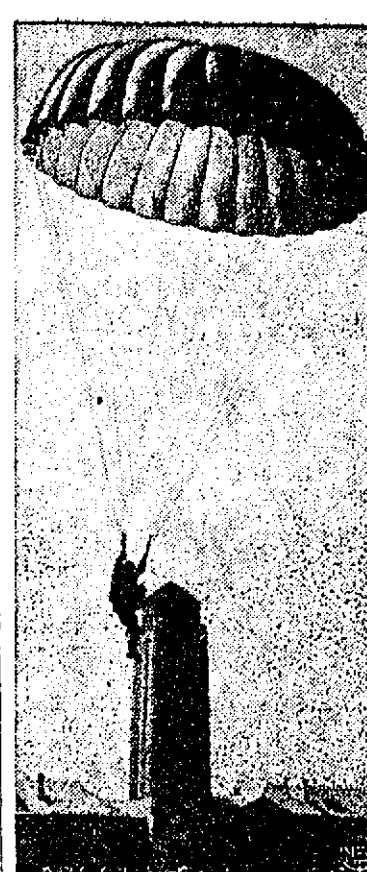

Today's pairings:
Betty Rusing, (80), El Dorado, vs. Betty Brown (89) Texarkana.
Mrs. Gordon Perrin (85), El Dorado, vs. Mrs. Fred Newberry (93) Texarkana.
Ed Del Wortz (84) Fort Smith, vs. Mrs. Howard Fuqua (90) Texarkana.
Mrs. Karl Robbins (88), Fort Smith, vs. Mrs. Gerlad Teasley (94) Texarkana.
Betty MacKinnon (80) Texarkana, vs. Mrs. Lou Miller (80) Hot Springs.
Mrs. Don Chronister (86) Pine Bluff, vs. Mrs. Willard Simmons (94) Texarkana.
Mrs. Alan Wieman (85) Little Rock, vs. Mrs. Jim Williams (91) Little Rock.
Mrs. Ned Stewart (89) Texarkana, vs. Joy K yot(94) Texarkana.

This crucial battle is going to be a tough one. As Morrison said: "The next election will be the fight of our lives." However, he also declared:

"If we have a high degree of religious zeal and public spirit we can defeat the Tories (Conservatives)."

A fair measure of the seriousness with which the Socialists are entering the campaign is seen in the fierce disciplinary action taken by the party last month against members for flouting party leadership. Two left wing members of parliament were thrown out of the party, and five other members were fired from parliamentary posts.

And there's plenty of reason for seriousness. This election may well determine the fate of socialism in England for a long time to come.

Jaycees Air Problems in Convention

By FRANK PITMAN

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 8 — (AP) — Heading the century-old cry of "Pike's Peak or Bust", 3,000 Jaycees assembled today at the foot of Colorado's most famous mountain for their 29th annual convention.

The Jaycees, formally known as members of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, rocked this resort town with their gaudy and hi-jinks. But the natives didn't mind. The place belongs to the visitors for the next four days.

The youngbloods of American business will stuff a large dose of Western hospitality in between serious business sessions. A chuck-wagon dinner in the scenic Garden of the Gods was an appetizer last night.

Today's program includes a bus trip through the famed gold-mining camps of Victor and Cripple Creek, west of here.

An old-style western village—featuring a special room with 200 slot machines—has been constructed on the outskirts of town. There are replicas of old saloons. One of them boasts an honest-to-goodness 110-foot bar with plenty of liquors to keep the wood damp from end to end.

Lively stables, general stores of the cracker-box philosophy era, a gold-assaying office and a typical boardwalk have also been set up for the conventioners.

There will be a nights-of-the-old West dance Saturday night at which time most of this mellow equipment is expected to get somewhat more than a mild workout.

Those attending the convention are expected to wear Western clothing and borrow horses if possible, hitching posts want them used.

The streets were already jammed with delegates today and more were still to come. The spirit among individual delegations was strictly from enthusiasm. North Carolinians paraded about in powder-blue corduroy jackets. Oregonians sported orange silk shirts with the state's symbolic evergreen tree on the back. Mississippi delegates — and their wives — wore blue confederate soldier hats.

Alabama's big turnout was bedecked in sailor's straw with bright red and white bands. Californians did their home territory proud by appearing in light-blue slack suits.

Mother: "Why did my Johnny fail in history?"

Teacher: "He didn't know when General Wolfe died."

Mother: "How could he be — with us livin' on a side street and never seein' a funeral go by!"

Light traveling from the farthest point in the universe which human beings can see with naked eye requires about 900,000 years to reach the earth.

Viewers Are Excited Over New Bendix

Dalers for Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., of South Bend, Ind., manufacturers of the revolutionary automatic agitator-type automatic washer, have reported to the distributor 555, Incorporated, at Little Rock, that an excited public has taken immediately to the sensational unit which Judson S. Sayre, Bendix president, has described as "The washer that couldn't happen."

The Bendix Economat is a fully automatic agitator type, top-loading washer. It is vibrationless and requires no bolting to the floor. The triple-action Wonderbub washes with improved agitator action. Then it squeezes in under vacuum pressure, to force dirty suds and dirty water down the hollow agitator. Heavier than water sediment flushes out the tub bottom. Dirty water never filters back through clothes. Then the Wonderbub rinses twice in clean warm water. Finally, the Wonderbub gently but firmly closes in again, under vacuum pressure, hugging every fold of the fabric until excess water is removed.

Bendix has spent $25,000 and two years to engineer the Economat Automatic Washer, the first automatic washer of entirely new design since the original Bendix was created. And now it goes to market at the world's lowest price.

Miss Truman Is Laundered By Music Coach

Kansas City, June 8 — (AP) — Miss Margaret Truman's progress as a singer was lauded today by her vocal coach, Conrad Bos.

The soprano daughter of the President and Mrs. Truman has made tremendous progress, he said here today. He predicted on her tour next winter she will give "some beautiful concerts."

"She is working very hard and is doing some very wonderful singing," he said.

Bos is here for two weeks as one of the visiting faculty members of the master classes at the University of Kansas City.

Bos disclosed that Helen Traubel, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, is Miss Truman's vocal supervisor. He is accompanist for Miss Traubel, whose former home was St. Louis.

Miss Truman's accompanist has not been designated, Bos said, but added he would make the choice soon.

New York debut this coming season," he said. "That will be an event of 1951. At that time I plan to be at the piano."

DDT Solves The Bedbug Problem

Hempstead county homemakers faced with a bedbug problem were advised today that bedbugs can be easily controlled with DDT. One treatment is usually enough, because even though they are hiding in walls they will be killed when they come out of hiding and get on beds, Lorraine Blackwood, Home Demonstration Agent stated.

The home demonstration agent said to use a spray mixture, applied with a sprayer or a paint brush or small mop. Light oil solution containing 5 per cent DDT can be purchased or the spray can with water to make a 5 per cent soluble powder or DDT emulsion of the mattress. Then turn it over.

In treating a bed, the first step is to strip off bed clothes, get brush and air or better yet, launder them. The next step is to spray or mop the top and sides of the mattress. Then turn it over onto the floor and spray the other side.

Next spray the springs and take them off the bed, Mrs. Blackwood explained.

The last step is to treat the bedstead, especially the inside, paying particular attention to cracks and crevices.

Fabrics Better Now Than During War

Home seamstresses are finding that combination fabrics now in Hempstead county stores are more desirable than the many combinations they purchased during the war. Home Demonstration Agent, Lorraine Blackwood explained that combinations are now used principally to give better wearing and keeping quality, rather than for mixing a cheaper fiber with a more expensive one to reduce cost as was previously done. Nylon chambray, a mixture of spun nylon and cotton has greater absorbency than nylon alone, Mrs. Blackwood explained.

Nylon and silk combinations to be used in sheer fabrics have a better "hand" or feel.

Nylon, used as the core of the year, with wool in lightweight, worsted sheers gives a fabric which is almost all worsted, but has the nylon for strength and lightness.

Nylon with acetate rayon produces a popular priced fabric which will dry quickly, Mrs. Blackwood pointed out.

Silk with rayon produces a fabric that is less expensive than all silk; yet the silk is said to improve the feel and washability of the fabric.

Red Officers Beat Back Mob of 200

By DANIEL DELUCE

Berlin, June 9 — (AP) — Four fist-swinging Russian officers today beat back a mob of 200 railway strikers who had invaded the American sector headquarters of the Soviet-controlled Berlin railway.

Later, on U. S. military government orders, western police guarded the entrance of the five-story building as a result of Soviet Commandant Alexander Kotkov's official complaint against the "hood-lum mob."

One Soviet officer, escorting a Russian was assaulted this morning. Pickets stormed around his car when he stopped in front of the building.

Another Russian officer rushed through the entrance to help. They pushed through the mob, holding the arm of the Russian woman. One of the Russians was kicked from the rear. He ignored it.

The West German police guarding the building kept a hands-off policy, except to warn several pickets who seemed to be getting too threatening.

The mob had invaded and occupied the building on the Spree canal late last night, but retreated shortly after midnight when the four Russian officers suddenly arrived.

The Russians, angered by the sight of the mob ripping pictures of Prime Minister Stalin and Lenin off the walls, pitched into the strikers with their fists and drove them to the ground floor of the building.

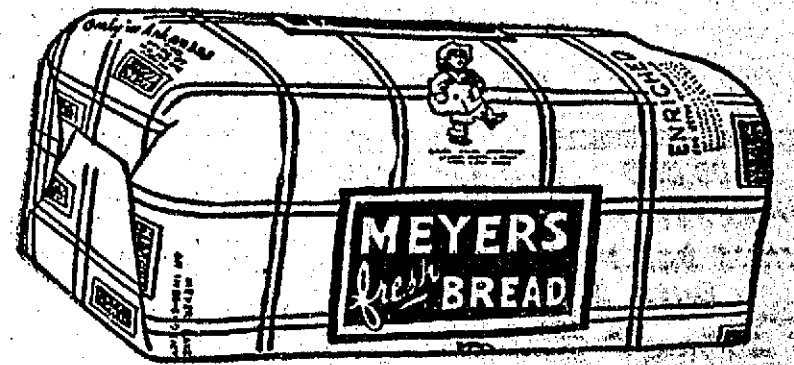

The mob withdrew after the arrival of 100 American sector German police, dispatched to the scene by Brig. Gen. Frank Howley, American commandant in Berlin.

Cotton Row to Be Abandoned

Memphis, Tenn., June 8 — (UP) — Cotton men today talked of a mass exodus from famous Front Street fronting the Mississippi river as plans for a 40-acre suburban cotton center went into the hands of architects and real estate firms.

"Cotton Row" has been the scene of the world's largest cotton market for decades. Occupants of Front street, said they needed larger quarters for classing, storage of cotton, sales and display rooms. The plan calls for providing space for all Memphis cotton firms in a series of buildings connected by enclosed walkways.
